

Nikki Murphy, M.S. CCC-SLP

Nikki Murphy holds an undergraduate degree in Music (voice emphasis) and a graduate degree in Speech-Language Pathology from the University of Nevada, Reno. In addition to volunteer and paid work in the non-profit performing arts sector, Nikki worked in Washoe County School District as a SLP Assistant prior to attending graduate school. In the course of her career Nikki has worked across the life span in acute medical care, school based Assistive Technology services, and Early Intervention services. While at NEIS, offered Hanen programs for parents, founded a multidisciplinary Assistive Technology Team, and served as a member of the Social-Emotional Assessment and Strategies Team focusing on early childhood mental health issues. Nikki recently accepted a full time faculty position at the University of Nevada, Reno at the rank of Lecturer and Clinical Supervisor in the Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology, where she is thrilled to expand and refine her love of teaching in the classroom and the clinic.

Professional memberships include ASHA, NSHA, and The Council for Exceptional Children/Division of Early Childhood. Nikki is an ACE award recipient and has taught graduate level AAC courses at Sierra Nevada College and the University of Nevada, Reno.
